Eco AI Device

Eco AI device by NXTSTIM works by blocking pain signal transmission from the peripheral nervous system to the central nervous system. NXTSTIM has announced 18-month data from a real-world study showing that its wearable transcutaneous electrical nerve and electromyographic stimulation device, EcoAI, can help relieve pain. The EcoAI device works by blocking pain signal transmission from the peripheral nervous system to the central nervous system. It has a pre-set choice of programs based on historical clinical data and evidence. It also uses artificial intelligence (AI) to record patient data and provide individualized patient neuro stimulation programmes. The patient places a gel pad on the body part where they feel pain. Then the patient can control the device via phone using Bluetooth. NEXSTIM electroceutical device can also serve as a remote patient monitoring tool. The EcoAI device has been cleared for use by the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) as a remote monitoring device that delivers transcutaneous electrical nerve stimulation (TENS) and electrical muscle stimulation (EMS).

EMBEDDED SYSTEMS

An embedded system is a combination of computer hardware and software designed for a specific function. Embedded systems may also function within a larger system. The systems can be programmable or have a fixed functionality.

While embedded systems are computing systems, they can range from having no user interface (UI) -- for example, on devices designed to perform a single task -- to complex graphical user interfaces (GUIs), such as in mobile devices. User interfaces can include buttons, LEDs (light-emitting diodes) and touch screen sensing. Some systems use remote user interfaces as well.

Embedded Systems are used in a wide range of technologies across an array of industries. Automobiles, Mobile phones, Industrial Machines, Medical equipment are the examples of embedded systems.

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE

Artificial intelligence is a field of science concerned with building computers and machines that can reason, learn, and act in such a way that would normally require human intelligence or that involves data whose scale exceeds what humans can analyze.

Artificial intelligence (AI), the ability of a digital computer or computer-controlled robot to perform tasks commonly associated with intelligent beings. The term is frequently applied to the project of developing systems endowed with the intellectual processes characteristic of humans, such as the ability to reason, discover meaning, generalize, or learn from past experience. Since their development in the 1940s, digital computers have been programmed to carry out very complex tasks—such as discovering proofs for mathematical theorems or playing chess—with great proficiency. Despite continuing advances in computer processing speed and memory capacity, there are as yet no programs that can match full human flexibility over wider domains or in tasks requiring much everyday knowledge.

On the other hand, some programs have attained the performance levels of human experts and professionals in executing certain specific tasks, so that artificial intelligence in this limited sense is found in applications as diverse as medical diagnosis, voice recognition and chatbots

INTERNET OF THINGS (IOT)

The Internet of Things (IoT) has experienced incredible growth, thanks to technological advancements and the surge in demand for instant insights into digital transformation solutions and activities.

The digitalization of things has drastically increase over the past few years and it has been made possible only because of cheap resources that are being made available to everyone so that each and every person can access these trends .But we cannot talk about digitalization without IoT. It's like a boon to technology and in today's era, no business can even grow without the implementation of IoT. Whether it's a Startup or a Big Multinational company, everyone is required IoT to outperform its competitors.

Generative AI

Generative AI refers to a branch of artificial intelligence focused on creating new content that mimics human-like outputs in various forms, such as images, text, audio, and video. It operates by learning patterns and structures from large datasets, enabling machines to generate original content that is often indistinguishable from what humans can produce.

Generative AI models are typically composed of two neural networks:

1. Generator: This network tries to create new, realistic data that resembles the training data it was exposed to.

2. Discriminator: This network acts as a critic, evaluating the data generated by the generator and determining how realistic or fake it appears.

Generative AI and predictive AI represent two distinct approaches within the broader field of artificial intelligence. Generative AI focuses on creating original and novel content, while predictive AI aims to forecast future outcomes based on historical data patterns. Each approach has its unique applications and use cases, empowering different industries and domains.

By understanding the distinctions between generative AI and predictive AI, organizations and individuals can leverage the strengths of each approach to drive innovation, enhance creativity, and make informed decisions. As AI continues to evolve, the synergistic combination of generative and predictive techniques holds the potential to unlock new opportunities and shape the future of intelligent systems.

Skills for a Generative AI Career:

LATEST TECHNOLOGY:

The Internet of things (IoT) describes devices with sensors, processing ability, software and other technologies that connect and exchange data with other devices and systems over the Internet or other communications networks. The Internet of things encompasses electronics, communication and computer science engineering. Internet of things has been considered a misnomer because devices do not need to be connected to the public internet, they only need to be connected to a network and be individually addressable.

The IoT can connect various manufacturing devices equipped with sensing, identification, processing, communication, actuation, and networking capabilities. Network control and management of manufacturing equipment, asset and situation management, or manufacturing process control allow IoT to be used for industrial applications and smart manufacturing. IoT intelligent systems enable rapid manufacturing and optimization of new products and rapid response to product demands.

There are numerous IoT applications in farming such as collecting data on temperature, rainfall, humidity, wind speed, pest infestation, and soil content. This data can be used to automate farming techniques, take informed decisions to improve quality and quantity, minimize risk and waste, and reduce the effort required to manage crops. For example, farmers can now monitor soil temperature and moisture from afar and even apply IoT-acquired data to precision fertilization programs. The overall goal is that data from sensors, coupled with the farmers knowledge and intuition about his or her farm, can help increase farm productivity, and also help reduce costs

THE DEPARTMENT OF MECHANICAL ENGINEERING

ABOUT THE DEPARTMENT :

Mr. M Umashankar
Prof. & Head

The Department of Mechanical Engineering at KSIT is as old as the Institute itself. Today, the department of mechanical engineering of KSIT attracts and features an extraordinary rich diversity and quantity of talented individuals, with nearly 450 undergraduates supported by experienced and highly qualified teaching and nonteaching staff. There is a concerted effort to raise the "Aspirational reference point" of the pupils undergoing graduate program in engineering by subjecting them to continuous value addition. Hence The Department has been producing excellent results with distinctions in the university examinations consistently. In addition to class room teaching learning processes students are guided and encouraged to be familiar with emerging technology. Our students have been actively associating themselves with industries through industrial projects, in plant training and industrial visits with almost all Mechanical engineering oriented organizations/industries. We feel proud to inform that our students earn places in the merit list of University Examinations every year.

Many of our alumni have pursued higher education in premier institutions world over & are at top executive positions at various enterprises such as Infosys, Wipro, L&T, Mercedes, TOYOTA, Robert Bosch, MICO and innumerable software, Manufacturing, Mechanical Design and service organizations. The Department has been recognized as R & D Centre by Visvesvaraya Technological University for carrying out Research activities leading to M.Sc. (Engg.) and Ph. D degrees.

LATEST TECHNOLOGY

Nano materials play a significant role in the energy sector, contributing to advancements in energy production, storage, conversion, and efficiency. Here are several ways in which nano materials impact the energy sector:

Improved Energy Storage:

Batteries and Super capacitors: Nano materials, such as nano structured electrodes and electrolytes, enhance the performance of batteries and super capacitors by increasing surface area, improving ion conductivity, and facilitating faster charge/discharge rates.

Enhanced Solar Energy Harvesting:

Photovoltaics: Nanomaterials like quantum dots, nano wires, and perovskite-based materials are used in the development of high-efficiency solar cells. These materials offer better light absorption, charge carrier mobility, and tunable band gaps.

Efficient Energy Conversion:

Catalysis: Nanomaterials are employed as catalysts for energy conversion processes, such as hydrogen production through water splitting and the conversion of biomass to biofuels. Nanostructured catalysts can significantly enhance reaction rates and selectivity.

Advanced Thermal Insulation:

Thermoelectric Materials: Nano structured thermoelectric materials improve the efficiency of thermoelectric devices, converting waste heat into electricity. These materials enhance heat conductivity while reducing electrical conductivity, leading to better thermoelectric performance.

Lightweight and Strong Structural Materials:

Wind Turbines and Aircraft: Nanomaterials, such as carbon nanotubes and nanocomposites, contribute to the development of lightweight and strong structural components for wind turbine blades, aircraft, and other applications, leading to increased energy efficiency.

Smart Grids and Energy Transmission:

Conductive Nano materials: Nano materials with high electrical conductivity, such as graphene and carbon nano tubes, are used in the development of conductive inks and coatings. These materials enable the creation of efficient conductive pathways, improving the performance of electronic components in smart grids and energy transmission.

Advanced Energy-Efficient Lighting:

LEDs and Nanophotonics: Nano materials are employed in the fabrication of high-efficiency light-emitting diodes (LEDs) and nanophotonic devices. Quantum dots and nanophotonic structures enhance light emission and manipulation, leading to more energy-efficient lighting technologies.

Improved Oil and Gas Extraction:

Nanofluids: Nanoparticles are used in nanofluids to enhance the efficiency of oil and gas extraction processes. These nanofluids can improve thermal conductivity, reduce friction, and modify fluid properties to optimize extraction operations.

Flexible and Lightweight Energy Storage

Flexible Electronics: Nano materials contribute to the development of flexible and lightweight energy storage devices, such as flexible batteries and super capacitors. This is particularly beneficial for applications like wearable electronics and flexible displays.

Nanotechnology in Nuclear Energy

Nuclear Reactors: Nano materials are explored for applications in nuclear energy, including radiation-resistant materials and improved fuel performance. Nanotechnology can contribute to enhancing the safety and efficiency of nuclear power generation.

LATEST TECHNOLOGY

The field of chemistry is continuously evolving with groundbreaking technological inventions that push the boundaries of scientific knowledge and industrial application. Here's an essay that highlights some of the latest technological inventions in chemistry

*The Vanguard of Chemistry: A Glimpse into the Latest Technological Inventions* Chemistry, often referred to as the central science, plays a pivotal role in bridging various scientific disciplines. Its advancements are crucial for the development of new materials, medicines, and energy solutions. As we step into the future, several technological inventions in chemistry stand out for their potential to revolutionize the industry and contribute to a sustainable world.

*Artificial Muscles and Biological Recycling* One of the most exciting developments is the creation of artificial muscles. These materials mimic the contraction and expansion of natural muscles, paving the way for advanced robotics and prosthetics. Coupled with this is the biological recycling of polyethylene terephthalate (PET), which addresses the global challenge of plastic waste through innovative degradation processes.

*Climate Change Mitigation and Energy Solutions* The chloride-mediated removal of ocean CO<sub>2</sub> presents a promising avenue for mitigating climate change effects by reducing atmospheric carbon levels. In the realm of energy, photocatalytic hydrogen production and synthetic electrochemistry are leading the charge towards clean and renewable energy sources, potentially transforming our energy infrastructure

*Healthcare Innovations* The healthcare sector also benefits from chemistry's advancements. Low-sugar vaccination techniques are being developed to enhance immune responses without relying on high sugar content, which can be detrimental to health. Phage therapy, an alternative to antibiotics, uses bacteriophages to target and destroy antibiotic-resistant bacteria, offering hope in the fight against superbugs.

*Integration of AI and Wearable Technology* The integration of GPT language models in chemistry signifies the fusion of artificial intelligence with chemical research, optimizing processes and accelerating discovery. Wearable sensors, on the other hand, bring chemistry directly to consumers, allowing for real-time health monitoring and environmental sensing.

*Conclusion* These inventions are just the tip of the iceberg in the vast ocean of chemical innovation. As we continue to explore and understand the molecular world, chemistry's role as the connecting science becomes ever more apparent. It is the catalyst for collaboration across disciplines and the harbinger of industrial innovation. The future of chemistry is bright, and its technological inventions will undoubtedly play a key role in shaping a better world for all.

These technologies represent a diverse selection of early-stage ideas to industrialized innovations across various fields of chemistry, including synthesis, materials science, energy, biomedicine, and education.
